WSCA call on public to get active and join up

The Western Sydney Conservation Alliance (WSCA) is calling on people concerned about the environment, overdevelopment, dodgy politics and planning to join their group. WSCA is inviting interested members of the public to attend its next meeting on Thursday the 19th of May at St Dominics College Kingswood.

"WSCA plays a very important role in keeping our politicians and decision makers accountable. WSCA is one of the few community groups in Western Sydney that actively participates in the planning process and challenge politicians over their decisions. It is vital that ordinary people get to have their say and WSCA gives people concerned about the environment and protecting their quality of life that vehicle." said David Bowen of WSCA.

"People should not think of WSCA as just a conservation group, yes we are involved in various environmental initiatives, but we are all local residents who are just concerned about what is best for our communities. And of course the protection of the natural environment is in the public interest as it benefits us all."

"So if your interest is the environment, if you are fed up with Penrith Council or you are concerned about proposed mass urban sprawl and how that will impact your life then you need to get active and have a go. So we are urging community minded people who want to make a positive contribution to the planet to come along this Thursday and join WSCA."

"The meeting commences at 7.30 pm and will include a short presentation by Peter Mobbs of WSCA about the local environment and planning issues. There will be plenty of time for discussion and refreshments will be available.

When: 7.30 - 9.00 pm, 19th May 2011
